Tub Bearing Failed After One Year

We received this washer in December 2014 as a warranty replacement for an LG machine. We were very pleased with the performance of the washer, very quiet, worked well for us. At almost exactly one year, the machine became noisy during spin cycle. Repair tech diagnosed a tub bearing failure. The machine was one year four days old, out of warranty. The tech stated that detergent and bleach can damage the bearing, seriously!?. This is obviously a manufacturing defect. I have contacted Sears and they won't touch it as it is out of warranty. I will pursue further, but recommend you avoid this machine & its LG counterpart.

I would recommend this product to a friend.

Kenmore Elite 4.5 front load

We bought the washer and dryer when our top load washer was not performing up to expectations anymore. I really needed a washer that could wash a king sized comforter and get it CLEAN. Well this machine does that beautifully. Initially we had some problems with the water flow shaking and banging the pipes from the water coming in and stopping so fast. The machine only uses so much water that is detected for each load. We had to add water arresters to the back of the machine where the water lines go in to stop this problem or it would have ruined our pipes and probably would have compromised our structure. After that was done, everything works perfectly and we have had it for two months now. I like how there is a magnetic prop so the door doesn't close all of the way after a wash. Air can circulate through so it doesn't get moldy on the door seals. This thing doesn't take much soap either. You don't even need to fill it up to the normal line for clothes to come out nice and clean. We did purchase the pedestals also. I am not very impressed with them. You can't really put your detergents or anything with much height in them. I think they are mainly for looks and to put your machine off of the floor some so you don't have to bend over, which is nice, but our detergent and fabric softener hang out on top of the washer. We had a heck of a time with the delivery and installation of both w & d but I will leave those comments for the dryer review. :) All in all this is a very nice washing machine. Wash times are a lot shorter than our old one. I would definitely recommend that you invest in the water arresters and if you don't need them you can always return them. They can be found at , etc...If it wasn't for this problem and for the pedestals being kind of worthless, I would have given it five stars. Also, we did get a nice rebate back from our utility company so if you do buy this make sure you check into that.

Love this washer!!

I've had this washer and the companion dryer for a week and I love them. I bought this to replace the Kenmore 4.3 cu ft. front loader (which was unbearably loud). I live on the second floor of a condo, so I hear about all noise from my unit. This washer is so quiet that I can run it while my daughter is sleeping in the next room. As well, the steam option does an amazing deep clean job. My workout clothes come out of the wash with no smell what so ever!! I got the steam option in the dryer as well and clothes come out static and wrinkle free without dryer sheets. With the steam options, the cycles can be very long, but the end results are worth the wait. If you plan on stacking them, be sure to order the stacking kit (by LG). The webpage does not list it as an accessory.

2 Days out of the box

Set the machine up 2 days ago. The capacity is amazing! Yesterday I loaded it up with 3 times the amount of clothes that I would normally put in our old front loader. It got them all clean, including a pair of shorts that were covered in dirt. I know there are complaints of water hammer on this model. I have experienced water hammer but it's not that bad. After running a few loads it seemed to get better (I plan on installing water hammer arrestors). It is disappointing that they couldn't engineer the valves to close more slowly to eliminate this problem. The machine is a lot quieter than my old front loader. We had a house rule that the last load of laundry could not be started any later than 9PM because of the noise. This machine has eliminated that problem. It is WAY quieter with the laundry room door open than the old machine was with the door shut. The good: Huge capacity, gets laundry clean. Built in water heater Lots of cool features Super quiet The not so good: Water hammer is annoying, but not terrible. Made in China (Matching dryer is made in Korea)

Cleans fast!!

Love my new washer and dryer!! Cleans fast and does a great job. It is so quiet and beats our old top loader hands down with how many clothes it can hold! So happy with it so far!!
